

Certificate of Study in East Asian Studies

This certificate (the Certificate) will be conferred by the Center for East Asian Studies (CEAS) of the University of Pennsylvania upon students in the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania (Penn Law) who successfully complete its requirements.

To qualify for the Certificate, a Penn Law student must successfully complete four courses in the general area of East Asian Studies.

Three of these courses are taken in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences (GAS) and must be primarily related to the study of East Asian societies. The fourth course is taken at Penn Law and will ordinarily include a component involving East Asia, but, with special permission of the Dean of Students may be in the area of International Law.

1. To fulfill the requirements of the Certificate, the four courses must meet the following requirements:
 - a. Two of the courses may be language courses, at the 500 level or above, but no more than two.
 - b. One of the four courses must deal with some aspect of law in East Asian societies.
 - c. One, but only one, of the four courses is taken at Penn Law.
 - i. The Law School course, if taken in the law system of one or more East Asian countries (which ordinarily will be the case), may fulfill both (b) and (c) of these requirements.
2. Students must maintain a B (3.0) grade average or above in the courses taken in GAS.

3. Courses in GAS will be chosen in consultation with and approved by the GAS advisor to the Certificate program. Courses at Penn Law will be approved by the Associate Dean or his or her designate.

Adopted, Penn Law faculty

March 24, 2008