

Penn Intellectual Property Group Symposium

March 19, 2008
Penn Law School
3400 Chestnut Street

Description:

On March 19, 2008, the University of Pennsylvania Law School's Penn Intellectual Property Group will host its first annual symposium. The symposium, titled "Copyright & the Internet: Solutions for a Digital World," will explore the problems that the rise of the Internet has created for copyright law. Panelists will include partners, law professors, members of lobbying groups, and in-house counsel for media companies.

Schedule:

10:00: Check-in and breakfast

10:30-12:00: Panel 1

"Industry Response to User-Generated Content: Cooperation or Litigation?"

Moderator: Gideon Parchomovsky

12:00-12:45: Lunch

12:45-1:15: Keynote speaker

1:30-3:00: Panel 2

"Can Copyright and the First Amendment be Reconciled in the Internet Age? Examining the Effects of Filtering, Takedown Notices, and the Role of Fair Use"

Moderator: R. Polk Wagner

3:00-4:30: Panel 3

"The Government's Role in Copyright Regulation: Discussing the Prioritizing Resources and Organization for Intellectual Property Act's Proposal to Create an Agency to Monitor IP Infringement Online"

Moderator: Christopher Yoo

The event is free and open to the public. A light breakfast and a full lunch will be served. Penn Intellectual Property Group would like to thank sponsors Hogan & Hartson for their generous support. To RSVP, or if you have further questions, please contact Karen Chesley at karenac [at] law.upenn.edu.