INTERFACE IV: EAST–WEST COUNTERTRADE CONFERENCE

The following materials consist of papers presented at and commentaries on the Interface IV: East–West Countertrade Conference, held in Philadelphia on October 15, 1982. Interface IV is the fourth in a series of roundtable conferences designed to discuss the problems of trade relations between market economies and nonmarket economies. Interface I addressed the application of United States antidumping laws to imports from nonmarket economy countries [1]. Interface II was charged with the broader mission of considering tensions in East–West trade relations and ways to stabilize trade relations [2]. Interface III focused on the effects of increasing subsidization of domestic industries on international trade [3]. Interface IV, contained herein, represents an effort by lawyers, economists, business leaders, and government officials to examine countertrade within the larger framework of United States foreign economic policy and the laws that underlie or support that policy. Participants are listed at the end of the conference papers and statements.
