

Frederick A. Tecce is an AV-rated, commercial litigation attorney, former federal prosecutor and registered patent attorney. Over the last forty years, both as a large firm partner, Practice Group Leader and Office Managing Partner, and as a founder of a nationally recognized litigation boutique firm, Fred has dedicated himself almost exclusively to contingency-fee based representation of a broad spectrum of claim holders, including intellectual property owners in a variety of industries and disciplines. Fred's record of achievement includes:

- Serving as counsel of record in over 600 civil and criminal cases in federal and state courts across the country including over 250 IP cases with 150 as lead counsel;
- First-chair experience in dozens of jury trials in state and federal courts;
- Achieving an over 80%-win rate for patentees in IPR's and post grant proceedings; and
- Obtaining verdicts, settlements and judgments totaling substantially into eight figures.

For clients ranging from publicly traded U.S. based businesses to behemoth multinational Pacific rim corporations, to a Ph.D. who prosecuted her own patents while raising three infant daughters as a widowed mother, Fred has earned his clients substantially eight figures in verdicts, settlements and judgments. These victories include: a jury victory with an eight-figure recovery against a nationally recognized university; an eight-figure settlement after a one-week jury trial for a publicly traded company; and, numerous seven-figure settlements and resolutions.

With his undergraduate degree in biomedical engineering, Fred has the technical background to quickly learn and understand a broad range of disciplines covering a multitude of technologies. As reflected in his over 5,000 incident-free hours as a commercially rated pilot operating complex, systems-based aircraft in all types of conditions, Fred has the ability to focus, solve problems as they arise, and remain calm in the face of any kind of challenge. Fred pairs his technical expertise with the ability to make complex topics comprehensible to non-technical audiences – including judges and juries – a strength honed through over 2,000 national television and radio appearances as a subject-matter expert over the last fifteen years. Equally important, with a down-to-earth style rare among intellectual property lawyers, Fred has consistently proved his ability to build factfinders' trust, narrow the issues, deliver focused and persuasive arguments, and serve as a highly effective advocate for his clients.
