CALL FOR APPLICATIONS

Center for Technology, Innovation and Competition Fellowship

The Center for Technology, Innovation and Competition (CTIC) invites applications for a CTIC Fellowship at the University of Pennsylvania Carey Law School in 2021 for a one-year appointment with the potential for a one-year extension. The fellow will work with Professors Christopher Yoo and Rakesh Vohra on their Economics of Digital Services project. Supported by the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation, the project seeks to provide a foundation for evidence-based decision making regarding the economics of digital services. The project aims to better understand technology companies whose business models are predicated on access to user data.

Responsibilities of the fellow will include but are not limited to:

- Conducting research on competition policy and antitrust as it relates to digital platform companies
- Assisting with outreach for and development of an annual conference
- Drafting project reports, research protocols, and other project documents
- Managing grant compliance process
- Leading website content development

Two years of experience in antitrust law is preferred. Applicants must have earned a law degree or have earned or be pursuing a PhD or equivalent in a related field and should not yet have held a full-time tenure track legal academic appointment.

Applicants should submit the following materials at <https://apply.interfolio.com/78639>.

In addition to a detailed research proposal (no more than 2,500 words):

1. Writing sample(s)
2. Curriculum vitae
3. Law school and/or graduate school transcript(s)
4. Two letters of recommendation (at least one must be from an academic)

Applications may be considered on a rolling basis. As a result, this position may be filled prior to the application deadline. Questions about this position should be sent to Caroline Olson, CTIC Managing Director, at cmolson@law.upenn.edu.
