OFFICE OF EQUITY & INCLUSION'S STUDENT ADVISORY BOARD MEMBER

Brooke is currently a 3L at Penn Law. She is originally from Connecticut and is a proud member of the Schaghticoke Tribal Nation, based in Kent Connecticut. Her Native roots led her to take on leadership roles of Native groups at both her undergraduate college, the University of Connecticut, and here at Penn. In these roles, she helped create safe spaces on campus for Native students, faculty, and community members to thrive as well as advocated for Native rights and culture.

She currently serves as Co-President of Penn Law's Native American Law Student Association (NALSA) as well as Graduate Chair of Penn's larger graduate and under graduation coalition, Natives at Penn (NAP). She hopes to use this experience in this role as a board member to help Natives, and fellow diverse students alike, feel heard.
