

Call for Applications: Penn Law Quattrone Center Fellowship

DATE: December 10, 2016

The Quattrone Center for the Fair Administration of Justice at Penn Law is accepting fellowship applications for 2016-2017.

About the Quattrone Center: The Quattrone Center for the Fair Administration of Justice is a research and policy hub housed at the University of Pennsylvania Law School. The interdisciplinary Center brings together faculty from across the University of Pennsylvania and the nation, collaborating with criminal justice practitioners in an interdisciplinary approach to reduce errors in the administration of justice. The Quattrone Center has rapidly established itself as a thought leader on issues pertaining to the reduction of errors in criminal justice, and is the chief proponent for blending law and scientific research (both social science and new technology) in a “systems approach” to improving the criminal justice system. The Center applies techniques from healthcare, aviation, and other industries focused on safety, quality control, reliability, etc. in ways that unify participants in the criminal justice system to implement, evaluate, and expand best practices in the administration of justice.

About the Fellowship: Designed for scholars interested in pursuing academic careers in areas related to the Quattrone Center's work, fellows enjoy faculty access to Penn Law services and full participation in all Quattrone Center events. Fellows receive a full year of funding and are eligible for renewal for an additional year. Fellows are expected to produce at least one original academic work during each year of funding. Additionally, part of each fellow's responsibilities include support for the Quattrone Center's programs, including the development of reports and proposals.

Requirements: Fellows must have earned a law degree or be pursuing a Ph.D. or equivalent in a related field and should not yet have held a full-time tenure track academic appointment. The fellowship is open to individuals with a background in law as well as those with a background in social science (e.g. psychology, economics, criminology, etc.) or medicine with a proven familiarity with criminal justice research.

To Apply:

Complete the Fellowship application here:

https://upenn.co1.qualtrics.com/SE/?SID=SV_eY7vDyZMwyWg9P7

1. Cover letter
2. CV
3. Undergraduate and law school and/or graduate school transcript(s), these can also be sent directly to quattronecenter@law.upenn.edu
4. Writing sample(s)
5. Two references, minimum (at least one must be an academic reference), these can also be sent directly to quattronecenter@law.upenn.edu

Alternatively, applicants may submit a paper copy of their application to:

Quattrone Center for the Fair Administration of Justice
c/o Executive Director
University of Pennsylvania Law School
3501 Sansom Street
Philadelphia, PA 19104-6204

Applications may be considered on a rolling basis, and this position may be filled at any time. Interested applicants are encouraged to express interest early.

Contact: quattronecenter@law.upenn.edu.

To learn more about the fellowship, visit: <https://www.law.upenn.edu/faculty/fellowships.php>

To learn more about the Quattrone Center, visit: <https://www.law.upenn.edu/institutes/quattronecenter/>