

2019 Fellows Program

As part of its mission to increase the diversity of the Philadelphia legal community, the PDLG is pleased to announce its 2019 Fellows Program for diverse students in their first year of law school.

The PDLG Fellows Program offers diverse 1Ls a route to summer employment at outstanding area law firms and legal departments. It also provides the PDLG Fellows with a series of seminars and programs designed to enhance their skills and increase their knowledge of the Philadelphia legal community.

The PDLG Fellows Program is open to any diverse first year law student who has overcome substantial obstacles in the pursuit of a legal career or who comes from a disadvantaged background or who comes from a background that is underrepresented in the Philadelphia legal community. Applicants must also have a sincere interest in practicing in the Philadelphia area.

Over the 16 years of the Program's existence, more than 480 students have been PDLG Fellows. If you would be interested in applying to be one of the 2019 PDLG Fellows, please join us at UPenn Law School on October 30, at noon, for more information. Information and the application also are available at the PDLG website:
