Comment responses

9. Is there any special preparation or background necessary to take this course?

Comments
background in econ would be helpful
No
A good background in microecon would be very helpful as there is a lot of it used in the course.
Macroeconomics and statistics would be useful, though not required
No – I actually Love that click did a 101 of Econ and Stats.
None– though a solid economics understanding is very helpful.
No

10. Comment on the instructor's (Jonathan Klick) stimulation of interest in the subject matter and independent thought.

Comments
Klick is very knowledgeable but sometimes works too hard to show how knowledgeable he is. Class is very interesting but can be hard to follow
The puzzles were really interesting and engaging. They were a good way to work through the material outside of the traditional case format.
One of the best professors. Love his puzzles. He's really teaching econ by "doing economics" i.e. making the students generate and debate hypotheses and teaching students the lingo/methodology.
I greatly enjoyed this class in the stimulation of interest in anti–trust. I had not thought much about the subject before but now I find it quite interesting
He did a good job brining in interesting topics and talking through economic issues, if you didn't have an econ background it was difficult to follow at times but still good to discuss.

11. Comment on the instructor (Jonathan Klick) with respect to attitude toward students and accessibility outside of class.

Comments
Very respectful of students and our opinions.
Great. Very honest, real, non–nonsense guy.
Good.
Very good

12. Comment on the strengths and weaknesses of the course. How could it be improved?

Comments
Would like to see better defined framework
Strengths: Professor Klick was incredibly knowledgeable. The puzzles were very interesting. I enjoyed the focus on economics over legal analysis. Weaknesses: too much assigned reading. not enough clarity on what we should be taking away from the readings, especially in regards to the exam
Sometimes I can't tell when Klick is dismissing a viewpoint because he disagrees with it or dismissing it because the field of econ has disagreed with it. For example, when he calls it "hipster anti–trust" – does he mean that the ideas are bad or that he personally disagrees?
Reading is a lot (not many people did it). The puzzles were good and kept things interesting, and the material is interesting.
The shortened schedule over the summer make it difficult to really get into the course material but Professor Klick did a good job of highlighting important info that was necessary to learn the topic
