

Office of Inclusion and Engagement Student Advisory Board Member

Ana Jarquin L'21

Ana is a second year dual-degree student at Penn Law and the Penn Graduate School of Education, where she is pursuing a M.S.Ed. in Education Policy. She is a Toll Public Interest Scholar and Co-President of the Latinx Law Students Association.

As a former ESL student, Ana understands the importance of investing students and families in the learning process. Her commitment to education led her to join Teach For America-New Jersey after graduation. Ana ultimately spent six years working in education as a classroom teacher and instructional coach for new educators. During this time, she co-founded a Culturally Responsive Pedagogy Fellowship for educators in New Jersey wanting to expand their practice to foster an inclusive and affirming environment for children in high-needs schools.

During her 1L summer, Ana interned at the U.S. Department of Education Office of Civil Rights, Philadelphia office. Ana is a Summa Cum Laude graduate of Texas Tech University, where she studied Political Science and Spanish. After law school, Ana is committed to working in the public sector to support education access and reform.
