Kimberly A. Hulseley L'93

Kimberly A. Hulseley, a Director in the In-House Counsel Practice Group of the award-winning legal search firm, Major Lindsey & Africa, advises in-house legal departments on strategic hiring decisions and places the best fit legal, government affairs and compliance talent in corporations, government agencies, not-for-profits and higher education institutions.

Before joining Major, Lindsey & Africa, Kimberly served as vice president, legal and government affairs for Scripps Networks, Interactive where she led the government and industry advocacy initiatives that advanced Scripps' business objectives. She also provided legal support to Scripps' real estate, construction, human resources, bankruptcy, research and corporate social responsibility functions.

Immediately before Scripps, Kimberly spent several years with TV One, starting as vice president, legal affairs and then advanced to the position of senior vice president, legal affairs and HR strategy. Prior to joining TV One, Kimberly was associate general counsel for affiliate and government relations at BET, supporting carriage negotiations with cable and satellite companies and maintaining primary responsibility for the regulatory issues affecting the company. She began her career as an associate with Fleischman & Walsh, LLP and an attorney-advisor with the FCC's Mass Media Bureau. Immediately after law school, Kimberly was a law clerk to Judge Michael Rankin of the D.C. Superior Court.

As a compliment to her professional life, Kimberly serves on the Women's Bar Association Task Force for Women of Color and is President of the Prince George's County Chapter of Jack and Jill of America, Inc. Kimberly is also a 2016 Fellow in the Leadership Council of Legal Diversity. Outside of work, Kimberly enjoys cupcakes and distance running (in that order) and mothering her tween daughter.
