Organization Description: Our firm specializes in the law of nonprofit organizations. We represent domestic and international grantmaking organizations, including family, independent, corporate, and community foundations. We also represent schools, trade and professional associations, churches and other religious organizations, social clubs, political committees, service clubs, and organizations devoted to social services, education, health care, environmental protection, peace and international understanding, human rights, arts and culture, animal welfare, and crime prevention. We serve clients throughout California, the United States, and abroad.

We represent clients in connection with the formation of new charitable and other nonprofit organizations. We assist clients in determining whether a business or nonprofit form is most suitable to achieve their goals. If the nonprofit form is appropriate, we consider whether the organization may qualify as a charitable organization. Within the charitable universe, we assist the client in selecting the type of public charity or private foundation that would be most fitting. Finally, we help the client develop the equivalent of a charitable business plan; we prepare and submit the necessary papers to governmental agencies for approval; and we provide written guidance to our clients for their future operations. We also form private and other grantmaking foundations and prepare grant administration forms and procedures for them.

We advise charitable and other nonprofit organizations with regard to legal issues that arise in the conduct of their activities. We alert clients to relevant legal developments, particularly those that may be useful to them in expanding or improving their programs. We offer preventive advice so that our clients may avoid troublesome legal issues in the future. We counsel clients about distinctive matters that arise in the nonprofit sector, such as affiliation agreements; revisions to bylaws or other governing documents; endowment funds; fiscal sponsorship arrangements; nonprofit mergers, acquisitions, conversions and dissolutions; and compliance with applicable public support tests. We advise our clients regarding compliance with federal and state rules regulating the charitable sector, including limitations on charitable solicitations, lobbying, political activities, and commercial ventures. We represent clients before regulatory agencies such as the Internal Revenue Service and state Attorneys General. We counsel directors and management of charitable and other nonprofit organizations with regard to the proper exercise of their fiduciary duties, and we also counsel members of such organizations with regard to their rights and obligations. We conduct periodic reviews of such organizations to assist directors and officers in satisfying their due diligence obligations.
